Parade Honors Veterans

Marchers First Stop Is Broadway Monument

The Memorial Day Parade marchers will begin their walk down Mass. ave. to lay wreaths at the graves of U.S. Servicemen at 9:30 Monday morning.

Town officials will join the Menotomy Minutemen, Gold Star Mothers and Fathers, the Disabled American Veterans, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and others in the parade.

The parade will form on Mass. ave. at Adams and Andrew st. at 9 a.m. and will depart at 9:30 a.m. rain or shine.

All participating organizations will appoint one member to serve on the staff of the Chief Marshal Wilfrid J. St. Martin Jr.

Marchers will walk down Mass. ave. until they reach the Civil War Monument and the Veterans Memorial at the junction of Broadway and Mass. ave. where services will be conducted.

At the corner of Broadway and Mass. ave., Mark Tremblay, chaplain of the Disabled American Veterans Chapter 49, will perform the invocation. The flag ceremony will then take place followed by the placing of the wreath by the Gold Star Mothers.

John D. Sullivan, Arlington veteran's agent, will give the address, and Mark Tremblay will say the prayer before the Stanley Benner Detachment of the Marine Corps League performs the firing party.

After taps, the parade will continue down Medford st. into Mt. Pleasant Cemetery to the GAR and Spanish American War lot, where services will be continued.

A wreath placing ceremony will also be held here. Afterward, Clarence Marsh, the Honorary Grand Marshal, will give an address and then there will be a firing party and taps.

Organizations will remain in order in the roadway with the exception of those participating in the exercise.

The parade will then continue to the World War I and II, and Korean War Veterans lots where for additional services.

William Blessington will place the wreath at the World War I lot. Salvino Napolitano will place the wreath at the Korean War lot. (Please see PARADE, Page 20)

Affordable Housing Plan Is Presented

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

With single-family housing costs hitting $200,000 in Arlington, thoughts of affordable housing for first-time homebuyers or newly married couples have become mere dreams.

However, a new task force on affordable housing wants to shake the town from its sleep and see if it can make a difference.

"I see the housing crunch to be a social problem and like every other social problem, if you ignore it long enough it will hit you," said Selectman Robert Murray, chairman of the Affordable Housing Task Force.

"We all have a responsibility to try to solve that social problem," Murray said.

Murray has taken on the responsibility to draw up an ambitious nine-point plan designed to help both couples making less than $50,000 and those on rental assistance programs find affordable homes in Arlington.

"Although we are a relatively newly established task force, we have developed a number of ideas which we believe will work, and see no reason that if they do, why we won't be able to provide purchase assistance for 75 units and rental assistance for 50 units of housing over the next two years," said Murray.

The center of his plan is the formation of a non-profit corporation to develop a mortgage subsidy program to assist people in purchasing homes.

To start a pool of money needed for mortgage aid, Murray said he has secured help from Bank Five, whose vice president also sits on the Task Force.

According to Murray, the task force is negotiating with the bank to give the town two houses — a two-family and a three-family — now slated to be torn down in East Arlington to make room for a new development. The task force is trying to find two lots of land to which the houses can be moved and then sold.

"We believe the combined market prices for these houses will be between $400,000 and $450,000," said Murray. (Please see HOUSING, Page 4)

Shallah Wins Project After Stormy Debate

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

Emotions flared Monday night during the hour-long debate before Town Meeting overwhelmingly paved the way for a townhouse condominium development on the site adjacent to King st.

Developer George Shallah had more luck at this year's Town Meeting when members approved 105-18 a scaled-down project of 11 townhouses.

Last year, the project calling for up to 18 or 19 units lacked the neighborhood's support and was defeated by two votes at the spring Town Meeting. Meanwhile, Shallah obtained permits for single family homes.

The project was resurrected this year by the Arlington Board of Selectmen worried about access to the site.

Neighbors were split on the project. Those living on Gorham street read a petition opposing a townhouse development in the hopes of preserving their single-family neighborhood status.

Gorham st. resident Barbara Bennett said she recently moved in with the understanding that a townhouse project had been defeated and the expectation that single-family homes would be constructed.

On the other hand, Peter Southwick of King st. presented a petition from King and Candia street residents in support of the rezoning for townhouses.

Southwick characterized this group as being more closely affected by the project and most directly involved.

This group approves of the restriction to 11 townhouses. A development plan for 11 single-family homes would destroy the site through blasting, Southwick said.

In addition, neighbors here favor the Redevelopment Board control that would come with a change in zoning.

"We do not wish to be at his (the developer's) mercy any longer," said Southwick. Without rezoning, the developer would be free to do as he chooses, with no input from either the town or neighbors.

Town Meeting member Owen Carigan criticized the developer for dumping on the land of the past year. He predicted the developer would also "dump" all the traffic on Summer st. (Please see SHALLAH, Page 2)

Larson Site Condominium Project OK'd

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

The condominium proposal for the Larson land passed with flying colors at Monday night's special meeting after only a 15-minute discussion.

By a 116-5 vote, Town Meeting members rezoned the site to allow a proposed project of 120 to 130 condominium units on land adjacent to the historic Old Schwamb Mill complex off Lowell st.

The three developers were all smiles after the vote and walked through the corridor next to the Town Hall auditorium shaking hands and talking excitedly.

"We were pleased by the vote," said Robert Green, a Cambridge attorney and one of three developers. "There seems to be a lot of support in the neighborhood and in the town for the project. We are anxious to move forward with the special permit process and Conservatino Commission approval."

"We had the feeling that there was a lot of support," added Green, after the meeting. "We were fairly confident there wasn't going to be a lot of people opposed because they would have surfaced sooner."

Their project was only conceived this year. But the developers came into the Special Town Meeting with unanimous support from the Redevelopment Board, Schwamb Mill Trustees and other site neighbors.

"We believe the plan will benefit the town and neighbors in several ways," said Robert Green, who gave a short overview to meeting members.

The developers have agreed to clean up and enhance Mill Brook which runs through the site and create a park area around the brook accessible to the public.

In addition, two buildings used by the Schwamb Mill, a barn and dryhouse, will be restored and transferred to the Mill Preservation Trust for ownership.

Sex And The Teen Years

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

"Teen Pregnancy in Arlington: Fact or Fiction?" is fact according to four panelists speaking Sunday night at First Parish.

Sponsored by the First Parish Social Responsibility Committee, forum panelists believe 47 percent of Arlington teenage girls and boys are sexually active, but have few places to turn for help and information.

The number of teens that get pregnant here is one in five, according to Patsy Kraemer, executive director of the Arlington Youth Consultation Center. "The number could possibly be one in four."

About 20 percent of those teens carry their pregnancies to term. Another 80 percent seek abortions.

In her experience, Kraemer says very few teens opt for adoption.

Not all teens are sexually active, Kraemer says. But, she says, "There are some Arlington girls who do not know anyone in their peer group who is a virgin."

Not Just Arlington Problem

Kraemer and other panelists were quick to point out Arlington statistics are similar to state and national figures.

There were 16 births recorded for Arlington teenagers in 1984, according to Elaine Hassler, a home economist and Arlington High School teacher. An unofficial count showed 17 pregnancies (including those who got abortions) at Arlington High this past fall.

"The teenage rate per thousand population is roughly the same as that of Lexington, a little higher than either Belmont or Winchester, roughly half that of Medford or Cambridge, and even lower compared to Somerville or Boston," says Hassler.

Statistics for teenage pregnancy has not changed dramatically over the past 10 years, Hassler says. In fact, teenage pregnancy and birth have declined from 10,257 in 1970 to 7,016 in 1984. Teen pregnancy in the state rose slightly in 1984, the last year statistics were compiled.

"What has changed dramatically in recent years is the growing decision to become sexually active before marriage," says Hassler.

Almost all teens feel sex before marriage is OK, Kraemer says. "Many feel it's OK to start having sex around 16 or 17."

"Not long ago the average age for a female getting married was in fact 17," says Kraemer. "The average age for a female getting married now is 22 — but the average age for becoming sexually active is still closer to 17."

Teen sexuality problems face local kids no matter what high school they attend, says panelist Charles Harrington, an Arlington High School teacher. "It's not just an Arlington High issue — it's a teenage issue."

Boys Have Great Influence

And teen sexuality is not an isolated issue, Harrington believes. Teenagers are "tremendous risk takers" which leads them to get involved with drinking, taking drugs and sexual activity, he says.

By the time students are seniors, Harrington says, 90 percent have been actively involved with drinking. "A number of our kids are big drinkers."

He says drugs and alcohol were a factor in all the cases he knows of where girls became pregnant.

At this age, the teenage boys "have a tremendous amount of influence over teenage girls," Harrington says. "They have a very big influence on what will happen in a relationship."

Later, an audience member asked panelists to describe boys' attitudes today.

Kraemer says she doesn't believe attitudes have changed much from the stereotypes. For boys it's "great to score a lot, have a lot of conquests, and not be responsible."

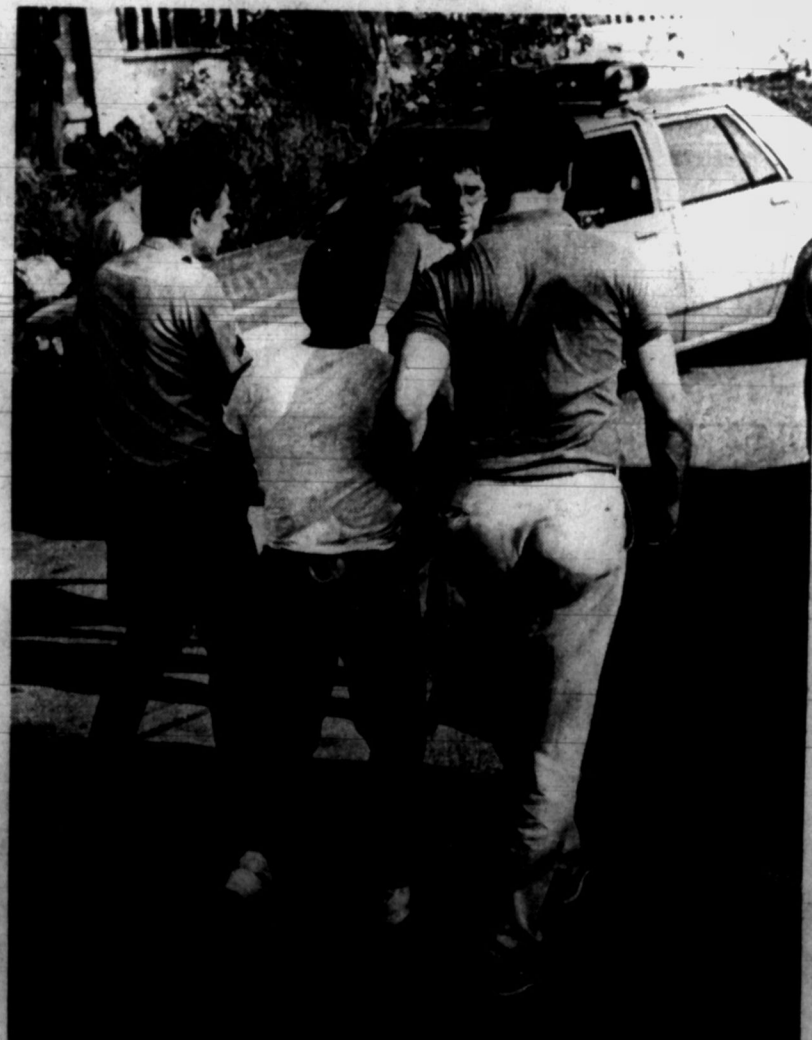

For some girls it is still important to express themselves through the man, says Kraemer. "So they are willing to suspend better judgment to get that man."

There's a tremendous amount of pressure on boys to be sexually active, added Harrington. No one would admit not being sexually active.

Contraceptives — Hit Or Miss

While Arlington teens are active in big numbers, teens are having sex without the protection of birth control, says Kraemer.

Stabbing Suspect Arrested

By WILLIAM B. HAYNES

A 20-year-old Arlington man was arrested late Monday afternoon in connection with a stabbing Saturday on Fremont court.

At 5 p.m., John J. Valminuto, 20, of 6 Wheaton rd., was arrested in the storage area of Arlex Supply where police said he was hiding. He was charged with armed robbery and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

The stabbing incident occurred about 3:11 p.m. on Saturday. When Officer Richard Carroll responded the call at Fremont court, he found two individuals. One had a knife in his hand and blood on his face, and fled the scene.

The other, 21-year-old David Crimmings of 41 Gorham rd. was observed clutching his hand which was bleeding badly. The victim told Carroll he had been stabbed.

Crimmings was taken to Symmes Hospital where he was treated for a puncture to the left arm, laceration to his finger, and an abrasion to the left side of his head. He was treated and released.

According to the police, Crimmings was taken to Symmes Hospital. (Please see SUSPECT, Page 20)

One In Five Get Pregnant Here: Panelist

She has not heard of anyone using a diaphragm. Some use the pill, but to actively think of planning ahead, seeing a doctor, and taking the pill regularly, is asking more than many teens can give, says Kraemer.

Condoms are the most common form of protection used. But because they are felt to interfere with the boy's enjoyment, they are used only during "certain times" of the month. Otherwise, nothing is used.

Kraemer sees some teenage girls choosing early parenthood to avoid intolerable situations at home.

"Some young people are coming from a tremendous amount of pain, a tremendous amount of family dysfunction," she says.

Some of the most common family difficulties include alcoholism, sexual abuse, physical abuse and emotional breakdown of a parent.

Having a baby is sometimes thought of as a way out of their mess, says Kraemer. It also provides a focus and career, someone to love and someone to love them.

Getting Information To Teens

Harrington says the external influences on teens — as the growing suicides rates show — make their lives difficult. Added to that is a lack of what he terms "good information" for teens.

"We really don't have anywhere to turn and ask questions. And you hear a lot of different stories."

—High School Senior

"There isn't a lot of accurate information coming from home because of a lot of you don't have a lot of information," says Harrington to parents in the audience.

Teenagers get a lot of mixed messages and not enough accurate information, Harrington says. Mixed messages include setting a drinking age at 21, but being able to drink anyway.

Parents' message to children regarding sex in their teens is usually "don't do it." But the messages they see everywhere else say something different.

Messages in the media are particularly damaging, says panelist Joan Tighe, executive director of the Alliance for Young Families. Of all the soaps including Dynasty etc. is there ever a mention of birth control? Tighe asks. "Never."

"It gives messages to kids that are hard to counteract," said Tighe. She suggests parents start to critique the media and send messages about the types of shows aired.

Panelists thought some type of education, starting in lower grades, was important. Mostly, they say their function is to give the information and let the community decide what needs to be done.

The education would not have to focus strictly on sex education, panel members say.

Harrington says he would like to see a life issues curriculum offered, not just a course focusing on one issue. Kids have everything decided for them, Harrington says. "They need information to help them make decisions, help them develop as people."

In the health course Harrington piloted at Arlington High School offered as an elective to freshmen, he says he puts an emphasis on being able to say "no" in different situations.

Sex education programs in other communities that have emphasized the right to say no have been effective in reducing pregnancy rates, says Kraemer. "They give permission to say no and feel OK about it."

In most cases, panelists say it is most difficult for kids to talk to their parents about sexual issues. "Even teens who have good relationships with their parents find it difficult to discuss very personal issues and concerns," said Hassler. "Where do they get their information?"

"Teenagers appear to be more sexually sophisticated than their parents were, but they may not be," said Hassler. "Teen information is very sketchy, not well internalized and often wrong."

Hassler herself teaches a Young Adult Living course for about 80 students, mostly girls. Other than biology and the pilot health course, Arlington High School has no formal courses on the subject.

Not all the responsibility should fall on the schools, Hassler says. She hopes her child will be able to get information from other sources including her church.

"We really don't have anywhere to turn," says an Arlington High School senior in the audience. "It's not just girls with problems that are having sex — it's a lot of different girls."

"We really don't have anywhere to turn and ask questions," the senior says. "And you hear a lot of different stories. They see it on TV, among their friends. It's accepted."

Marotta Is Shuttle Finalist

By EDWARD ENGEL

Terry Marotta, a columnist for The Advocate and 65 other newspapers, said she is "very excited, delighted and honored" about being chosen last Wednesday as one of 40 finalists to ride on the space shuttle.

She was chosen last month as one of 100 semifinalists in the national "Journalists in Space" competition. The semifinalists came from five regions of the country. Each area comprised 20 semifinalists, out of which eight finalists were selected.

"I don't think I expected it [to be chosen], but I almost feel I will it into being because I don't know anyone who wanted to go more," Marotta said.

Marotta was interviewed May 12-13 in Iowa City by a nine-member panel of journalists that questioned the semifinalists individually.

"They asked very hard questions in rapid-fire succession," said Marotta. "I suppose they were trying to simulate what anyone of the semifinalists would have to face as the day came near.

Marotta, who says she cannot speculate on the outcome of the competition, writes her syndicated column on everyday topics, with sources for ideas usually coming directly from her experiences.

She says she loved writing in high school but forgot about it until she started writing for The Winchester Star in 1980.

Marotta lives in Winchester with her husband and three children.

at a dangerous intersection. George Buckley left Town Meeting members were being blackmailed. If they didn't go along with the project they were told they would be endangering lives.

Buckley said the town should take a closer look at other space left in Arlington for building to prevent any "shysters" or Shallah's from building.

Daniel Purcell asked how many families would be moving into each townhouse.

Planning Director Alan McClenen said the townhouses will have two bedrooms, compared to three or four that would be single-family homes.

Townhouses are clustered, leaving more open space, explained McClenen.

Redevelopment Board chairman Thomas Falwell assured members that the board would not approve any more than 11 units for that site no matter who the developer is.

One Town Meeting member said "compromise" would be a better description than blackmail for the proposed project.

"The plans that I see are very attractive," he said. "I don't know what people are afraid of."

Town Meeting also approved street acceptances for King Street, Candia Street and Gorham. Now private ways, the streets will become public roads at the developer's expense.

An amendment to the street acceptances article to accept only a portion of Candia St was defeated. The amendment was designed to help one Candia St. family which parks on the private road and would have to construct parking spaces on their own land if the road goes public.

Town Meeting member John Worden asked if parking could be made available to this family within the project. The developer's lawyer, Mark Donahue, said this problem was never brought to him, but that the Redevelopment Board will be responsible for the number of parking spaces allowed.

Larson Site Project OK'd

said he and his partners would be "removing a blighted area." The amount of open space, 37 percent of the site, is more than twice the minimum requirement of the zoning bylaw.

The 120 to 130 units will be built in a complex from two stories up to five stories, with parking underneath the buildings.

Traffic will be able to enter the site from both Lowell St. and Mill Lane. Judge Rudolph Kass, a Schwamb Mill Preservation trustee and former Town Meeting member, spoke in favor of the project, especially from the point of view of the mill.

Kass said the trustees were almost responsible for bringing in these particular developers, whom they felt would do a reputable job.

Kass called the development intelligent because it preserved the area around the mill and created an open space around the brook. "It makes for a very useful and attractive area."

After Kass spoke, Town Meeting member Daniel Purcell called for a vote to terminate debate.

Members then voted to terminate debate and overwhelmingly approved the project.

Specific plans for the project will later be reviewed by the Arlington Redevelopment Board, Conservation Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals.

The property rezoned had been used by the E.W. Larson Co., lumber haulers, as a wholesale lumber transfer and storage yard for many years.

WEARING TWO HEARING AIDS
Two working ears are important not only for balanced sound reception, but for spatial orientation as well. With binaural hearing, (a hearing aid in each ear) it is easy to gauge where a speaker is standing. It is also easy to sense the direction of an approaching car even before it's seen, or follow conversations in a group as people move about a room.

Binaural hearing gives you the balanced hearing advantages offered by stereo and headsets. Most times, people with a hearing loss in both ears will buy an aid for the better ear, but they could benefit more by wearing one in each ear. The human hearing system is designed to provide spatial orientation, which is why nature gave us two ears instead of one. Occasionally a person will not gain any benefit from two aids but the only way to know is to wear them for several weeks.

ACHOO—IT'S HAYFEVER TIME AGAIN
To understand what hayfever is, you must first know something about the immune system of the body. The immune system is simply your defense army against intruders, such as germs or other foreign material. Part of your immune system is made up of the mucous membranes which line your nose, sinuses, Eustachian tubes, and conjunctiva. The Eustachian tube is a small canal which connects the ear with the nose. The conjunctiva is a mucous membrane that covers the eye.

One of the functions of the mucous membrane is to keep all harmful material out of the body. Thus, when germs enter through the nose, the mucous membranes of the nasal passage respond by secreting mucus which kills the germs and washes them away. We realize the situation as a runny nose and we say we have a "cold." A cold is the body's appropriate response to invasions of the mucous membranes by germs. However, hayfever represents a situation in which the immune system is overly sensitive. The mucous membranes are regarding harmless substances, for example, grass, feathers, or pollen, as dangerous intruders and respond by secreting mucus to try to wash these harmless substances away. This creates a condition in which the nose is almost always secreting mucus and the unfortunate sufferer thinks he has a chronic cold until finally he is diagnosed as having HAYFEVER.

ALLERGIC RHINITIS is an unnatural condition, an allergy caused by the misinterpretation of the body of certain stimuli.

To restore the correct interpretation of these "harmless substances" you must restore the integrity of your spine. This is not always going to be a "ZAP-INSTANT CURE"—it is more likely a long term correction process and one where you must determine that you're going to stick with the corrective process until you get the clean bill of health and then maintain that condition or just as sure as the sun rises, you'll be "running around" with a "runny nose."

Town Workers Get One Of Earliest Heat Days Ever

By WILLIAM B. HAYNES
The mercury shook itself loose from the lower half of Arlington thermometers this week and flew into the 80s and 90s.

As the temperature rose to over 92 degrees on Monday, some town employees also rose and climbed out of their offices, cars, or trucks, to spend the afternoon at home.

Monday was declared a "heat day" in Arlington and all employees except those whose work was immediately essential, and those with air-conditioned offices, had the afternoon off. The heat day was called at 1:40 p.m.

"It was by far the earliest heat day we ever had," said acting Town Manager John Maher.

Maher said heat days were begun eight years ago to protect town employees against working when the heat made work too uncomfortable and even dangerous for health reasons. (Town Hall is not air-conditioned.)

Over the years, the high before employees could go home varied between 94 and 90 degrees. The current agreement is 92.

The thermometer used to determine the temperature has also varied between Boston and Lexington. Now, a thermometer located in the shade at the Department of Public Works grounds is used.

Open Meeting On Police/Fire Report Tonight

Arlington police officers and firefighters invite the public to attend the public meeting tonight with consultants of the new police/fire study. The meeting is set for 8 p.m. in the Town Hall auditorium.

Department members will question representatives from the consulting firm Cresap, McCormick and Paget on its report calling for major personnel cuts in both police and fire services.

Members of the Board of Selectmen and police and fire personnel from surrounding towns are also expected to attend the meeting.

18 Teachers Sent Layoff Notices List To Decrease In Coming Years, Say Superintendent

By WILLIAM B. HAYNES
Some Arlington teachers may not have jobs next year. Eighteen teachers have received letters informing them that they have been placed on the Reduction in Force (RIF) list and may not return to work next fall.

Many of the teachers were not surprised to get the letter because they had received similar letters in past years, only to be rehired over the summer.

Placing teachers on the RIF list is done on the basis of seniority, discipline and positions available, not performance.

Two years ago, 64 teachers were placed on the list. Last year, the number fell to 49. This year, it has declined even further to 18.

Most of the teachers only lose their jobs temporarily. Two years ago, all but nine teachers were rehired over the summer, and last year all but eight were offered a job.

Although it is impossible to guess the precise number to be rehired this year, Superintendent of Schools Walter Devine said that once again most of those laid off will be rehired when the needs are refined.

"We have the shortest RIF list this year that we have ever had," said Devine. He said in future the number of the teachers put on the list will be negligible.

The major reason for teachers losing their jobs in the past has been declining enrollment.

Because the decrease in the percentage of enrollment is slowing down, the number of teachers placed on the list has also decreased.

"The enrollment is certainly not a major factor," said Devine. Factors contributing to this year's list are a combination of enrollment shifts from one school to another, returning teachers who were on leaves of absence, contractual issues, and the needed dispersment of teachers within a particular school.

According to Devine, many of the teachers have been placed on the RIF list before.

"The majority of the elementary teachers and all the special education people not on tenure were RIFed," said Devine. "Most RIF teachers know we'll write them and tell them up front if their chances are good or not."

Devine says the trend to a smaller and smaller list will continue due to the many older teachers in the system that may be retiring soon, teachers who may go to other school systems, and a leveling off of enrollment.

Enrollment figures have been up in kindergarten classes for the last three years, and Devine looks hopefully toward the future.

"Down the line I don't see anybody getting RIFed," said Devine. "I hope there will be next to none next year, but we do have leaves and we have to provide for them when they return."

"The future looks optimistic," said Devine. "In fact we will be scrambling to get good teachers in the future."

School Supt. Devine Gets $6,800 Raise

By WILLIAM B. HAYNES
Next year, Superintendent of Schools Walter Devine will earn $6,800 more than this year, bringing his salary to $63,500.

School Committee members voted unanimously to raise Devine's salary from his present $56,200 at the last School Committee meeting. The raise will be effective July 1. Last year his salary increased $4,200, from $52,000 to $56,200.

Committee member William O'Brien made the motion for the $5,800 raise, saying that it was justified because the gap between the school superintendent's salary and that of the town manager has been widening over the years while the gap between the salary of the superintendent and the Arlington High School principal has been narrowing.

Town Manager Donald Marquis will receive $67,824 in July, and AHS Principal Stephen Diott will get $53,559.

School Committee members praised Devine's work.

"I've been extremely pleased with Walter," said Janice Bakery. "He's doing an extremely competent job. He works an 18-hour day. He's going to be a leader and make his mark on the system."

"When we went through the interviewing process three years ago I voted for Walter," said William Carey. "He's lived up to our expectations. He's more visible than I thought and involved in statewide organizations. I think he's doing a good job."

The raise puts the salary of the Arlington school superintendent, in charge of a system with 4,408 students, in line with that of other towns with similar enrollments, committee members say.

The superintendent in Lexington, with an enrollment of 4,713, will receive $63,500 next year. The superintendent of the 4,000-student Reading school system will receive $61,300. Winchester's superintendent will receive $60,109, and Belmont's will get $65,500.

Asinari Award Goes To MIT Senior

The 1986 John L. Asinari Award, in memory of John L. Asinari (Arlington High Class of 1972), was awarded to Saechin Kim, a senior in the Department of Biology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Honorable mention went to James H. Koenig, a junior, who is also in the Department of Biology.

The award is given annually at M.I.T. for outstanding research by an undergraduate student in the field of life sciences.

Task Force Releases Housing Plan

After deducting the moving costs, site work and the cost for new foundations, we should net out between $400,000 and $450,000 to start our mortgage subsidy program.

To keep the pool of money growing, the corporation will raise funds in the community and through the churches.

Another way to raise money will be through an equity lending program.

"We believe there are some couples who can afford the payments it takes to buy a house today, but don't have the down payment money," said Murray. "It is this group of people that we feel will not only be helped by us but will also help us."

The corporation could loan this group money for the down payment and take an equity position in the property for a fixed period of time.

The corporation will share in the appreciation of the property and this appreciation or profit can be added to the pool of money to provide mortgage subsidies and other equity loans, explains Murray.

Another part of the program involves the developers of new housing in Arlington. Currently there are three major private housing developments in the planning stages and Murray said all three have been approached and are willing to work with the task force.

By his estimates the three projects will provide about 400 condominiums selling between $140,000 and $250,000.

"It is our goal to work with these developers to obtain 10 percent of the their units at below market prices as one way to provide housing assistance."

The task force has also requested a list of all properties that are three years or more behind in their taxes. They believe that may be able to find some abandoned units available below market cost.

Other "tools" to increase the affordability of housing involve using town leverage and would probably require special legislation.

Murray and the task force may ask the town to grant a tax deferment for those just buying houses. According to the plan, deferring taxes of $2,000 per year would equal the amount of money need to pay $19,000 worth of mortgage at 10 percent for 30 years.

"This means a young couple could afford to pay $19,000 more for a single-family home and $21,500 more for a two-family home if the taxes were deferred," explained Murray.

"We see a tax deferment program working something like this: the town would grant a five-year deferment at no interest, take a lien on the property for the taxes, and the taxes deferred would be paid back over the sixth through fifteenth year or when the property was sold, whichever came first," said Murray.

In order to develop ways to create more rental units for section 8 and 707 residents, the task force has discussed an abatement program through the town.

An abatement program would work for those buying an apartment complex or two-family homes. If the purchaser agrees to lease the second apartment to a recipient in a state or federal housing program then the could offer an abatement.

While most apartments in Arlington are renting at between $650 and $800, the section 8 and 707 programs allow rent money of approximately $500 a month, making it difficult for recipients to find apartments.

For example, a two-family in Arlington is taxed about $2,000 a year, explains Murray. If the rental apartment was leased to a recipient of section 8 or 707 assistance at $1,800 below market and the town abated $1,500 in taxes for the apartment owner, the owner would be losing only $300, he said.

Town Hall Roundup

Two Town's Selectmen Discuss Traffic Woes

Selectmen from Arlington and Belmont will team up to bring their traffic concerns about Alewife development to Cambridge officials.

Both towns have seen traffic increases since construction of the new Alewife station and nearby development. Selectmen from both towns are worried about what additional ills the future may hold.

Representatives of both boards, plus Arlington Planning Director Alan McClellan, Arlington Director of Public Works Richard Bowler, Rep. Mary Jane Gibson, and Arlington Engineer Charles Rincari met on Tuesday night in Arlington Town Hall to discuss the issue.

"I know that we don't have great control in Cambridge, but I think it might be helpful if all of us go together," said Belmont Selectman Chairman William Monahan. "Our feeling was that we would talk to you and inform you about the traffic problems, and then present to state officials commonly shared wishes and plans to resolve this seemingly unresolvable problem."

Belmont Selectmen said they receive constant complaints about the traffic from residents.

Arlington and Belmont Selectmen decided to meet again soon after this initial meeting to draft a letter to Cambridge and state officials expressing their common concerns.

King Chef To Return To Board

People who want to start a restaurant on Broadway were told by Selectmen that the building inspector and the Board of Health would have to look at their plans for a filter system before the King Chef restaurant could open at 203 A Broadway.

They were also told that they should build a fire wall and agree to continually police the site for trash. The plan for the filter system will be checked and approved by the building inspector and the Board of Health before they return to the Selectmen for approval of the vendor's license.

Two Appointed To Aging Council

Francis Ingeme and Barbara Dwyer were appointed to the Council on Aging. Town Manager Donald Marquis recommended and the Selectmen agreed to their appointment until the end of May, 1989.

Lyman Remains Historic District

Selectmen decided to allow Frederick Lyman to remain a member of the Central Street Historic District Commission until his term runs out in 1987. Lyman recently moved to Winchester but was not sure whether he would be allowed to stay on the board. "He's been a catalyst," said Executive Secretary Fred Pitcher to the board.

Mallio Is New Children's Services Head

Resident Replaces
Grace Greene
At Robbins

By EDWARD ENGEL
With her new job, Osee Mallio will be helping out more Arlington kids than ever before.

Earlier this month, Mallio took over as Head of Children's Services for the Robbins Library System after busying herself since March 1985 as Children's Librarian at Robbins.

Grace Greene, who previously held the position, left to become consultant for Children's Services for the state of Vermont.

As Children's Librarian at Robbins, Mallio was involved in planning the 150th anniversary of the Children's Library and shared responsibility for children's programming, pre-school story hours and selection of materials and reference services for children.

In her new position, the near 20-year resident of Arlington has taken reign of children's services for both the main library and the two branches. She now will plan and implement all programming and choose all library materials for children from the age of infant through sixth grade.

"It's going to be easier now to organize a townwide system of programs," says Mallio.

Included in the programming, which Mallio says is planned one year ahead, are monthly presentations by performers, story hours, movies, workshops and Saturday morning programs from September to June.

Does Mallio see any changes from Greene's programming?

"Not necessarily any change... If anything I'd add to the variety of programs."

Among Mallio's supplementary duties are helping students with reference materials, finding non-fiction books on the subject of children for teachers and parents, working with prospective teachers and librarians, acting as a resource for storytellers, and suggesting books.

"When you make suggestions, you get to share a book you care about with other people. It's one of the more interesting parts of the job," she says.

Preparing for the automation of Robbins and the branch libraries is taking up most of Mallio's time now. She is in charge of making sure that all town public and parochial students receive a new library card for the automated system.

And Mallio is also planning a summer reading program, "Something's Fishy at the Library." The program begins June 19 with a 10:30 a.m. performance of "Clowns Around" at Town Hall.

Arlington was a starting point for Mallio's career, as she worked in the Dallin Branch Library for one year after graduating in 1969 from Simmons College with a master of library science degree.

Her other library experience includes jobs at the Boston Public Library, the Habitat Institute for the Environment, the New England School of Acupuncture and eight years as a volunteer organizer at the New England Wildflower Society's library.

Mallio has also worked at the Arlington Children's Center and at a Marshall Islands pre-school where she lived with her family for five years.

"The thing that makes this particular job such a great one," says Mallio, "is the staff at the library and the public. They're [the public] a joy to work with because they're so responsive to the things the library offers."

Robbins has recently hired a children's librarian to fill the vacant position at the main library, as of July 1, and is now interviewing for the open position in children's services at the branches.

In the police log this week, police received reports of 12 cars vandalized, seven thefts and three housebreaks.

Thefts

A gas grill was the only one of the seven items recorded stolen last week not taken from an automobile.

Last Tuesday, a battery was stolen from an unregistered 1986 Jeep CJ7 at Milla's Subaru on 1 Broadway.

On Wednesday, four hubcaps were taken from a 1986 Buick in its Ottawa rd. driveway.

On Thursday, a gold 1981 Buick Skylark was stolen from Hodgdon-Noyes Buick at 835 Mass. ave.

A stereo was taken from a car belonging to a Wethersley woman while it was parked on Claremont ave. on Thursday.

A 1984 black Dodge pickup truck was stolen from Epping st. on Sunday.

Sunglasses, a wallet with $25 cash, credit cards, personal papers, operator's license, and spare car keys were taken from a 1985 Toyota while it was parked on Allen st. on Sunday.

A gas grill valued at $200 was stolen from a porch on Frazer rd. on Sunday.

Housebreaks

A rug and $43 cash were taken from a Webcowet rd. home last Tuesday.

Last Wednesday, a ladies gold ring and two ladies gold watches were taken from a River st. home.

Also on Wednesday, the front door of a Clark st. home was pried open, but nothing was reported missing.

Vandalism

The right front door window was broken and dash smashed in an at-

The Arlington Advocate Police Log

tempt to remove the stereo in a car parked in the Symmes Hospital lot last Tuesday.

Two tires valued at $140 were slashed Friday night on a 1978 Toyota on Waldo rd.

Four cars were vandalized at Milla's Subaru at 1 Broadway last Wednesday. The battery was taken from a 1986 Jeep, two speakers were taken from a 1980 Subaru, another 1980 Subaru was damaged, and the ignition wires were cut on a Volkswagen.

The passenger side door lock was damaged Thursday on a 1983 Oldsmobile parked on Hopkins rd.

On Friday, the left front window was broken on a 1971 Ford Bronco parked on Mass. ave.

Also on Friday, the rear window was broken on a 1984 Chevrolet parked on Columbia rd.

Windshields were broken on both a Buick and a Subaru parked on West st. on Sunday.

Miscellaneous

A 36-year-old Gray st. man reported to police that he struck a youth on the hand with a golf club after he spotted the youths walking around the neighborhood acting suspiciously with flashlights and trash bags at 2:30 a.m. on Sunday.

Police Arrest Escapee

Police arrested a Somerville man on Mystic st. one day after he had escaped from the Boston Pre-Release Center in Dorchester, where he was serving nine to 10 years for robbery and kidnapping.

Thomas E. Enos, 27, of 7 Hathroth st. in Somerville, was arrested on Mystic st. by Officer Donald Brown and Sgt. Arthur McLean, on an MCI warrant for kidnapping and robbery.

Police say that on Thursday morning, Brown observed a vehicle travelling down Mass. ave. driven by a female with a passenger who fit the description of the suspect.

Later in the day, McLean and Brown were en route to the home of the female driver when they again spotted the car, this time traveling on Mystic st. near Chestnut st.

According to police, the car was stopped and the driver and passenger questioned. The passenger was identified as Enos, and arrested. He was later turned over to the Department of Corrections Fugitive Renditions Unit and transferred to MCI in Concord.

"It was a good piece of police work and the Mass. Dept. of Corrections has forwarded a notice of well done," said Arlington Police Captain Eugene DelGaizo.

Underachievers Are Discussion Topic

The Guidance Department will host a program dealing with the underachieving student. This program is scheduled for Thursday, May 29 at 7 p.m. in the Media Center at Arlington High School.

Parents and students are invited to join Dr. Gertrude M. Webb who will discuss the topic: "Your child underachieving academically?" — Tune him/her in again.

Dr. Webb has spent her professional life of nearly a half century in teaching and trying to unravel the mysteries of learning. Pursuing the problem of the maximization of learning, she has analyzed the attributes of effective school achievers compared to those of ineffective school learners, and developed strategies to move the latter towards the former's competencies.

Her search has led her to research studies focusing on the brain and the self, to applying that learning to practice in classrooms at every grade level. Since 1970, she has designed, developed and administered this pioneer program in our country for college able, language-disabled students at Curry College in Milton, Massachusetts, PAL (Program for Advancement in Learning) where she also directs the Advanced Studies Program for practicing teachers.

If any parent or student has a specific question relative to underachieving that he/she would like addressed by Dr. Webb, please contact Vincent D'Antona, Administrative Counselor of the Guidance Department, at 646-1000, Ext. 3128.

Brackett School Sets Fair Date

A New Breed Of Auto Mechanic Being Taught

Fifteen people from the greater Boston area have just completed a program designed to train a new breed of auto mechanics who understand electronics and computers as well as cars. This has become necessary because computers can now be found under the hood helping operate most new cars.

The Automotive Service Educational Program (first of its kind in New England) is sponsored and run jointly by Massachusetts Bay Community College, Minuteman Technical High School and General Motors.

Mass Bay provides the academic courses and grants Associate Degrees in Automotive Technology to those who complete the course. Minuteman Tech provides the hands-on technical training in its automotive shop with state-of-the-art equipment and auto mechanics instructors trained by General Motors.

Students practice their skills on new cars donated to Minuteman Tech every year by General Motors.

This three-way partnership between industry and public education is unique in other ways. In addition to being high school graduates with some auto mechanics skills, all program participants must be sponsored by General Motors dealers where the students will work for pay during eight week blocks of time throughout the two years that the program runs.

Students alternate these eight-week blocks with eight-week time blocks spent at Mass Bay in academic classes and at Minuteman Tech in auto mechanics classes.

This enables participating students to help support themselves and pay their tuition. It also assures them of jobs upon graduation from the program.

The General Motors dealers for whom they work receive help right away diagnosing and fixing problems which come up on the new "high tech" cars.

The program's added plus for Minuteman Tech high school students studying automotive mechanics is access to the new equipment, cars and the General Motors trained instructors. Four Minuteman Tech graduates are among the students in the first ASEP graduating class.

They will receive their Mass Bay Community College Associate Degrees during the school's graduation ceremonies on June 1 at its Wellesley campus.

Coordinating the program for General Motors is Henry A. (Tony) Baker of the GM Training Center in Dedham, for Mass Bay the coordinator is Dr. Paul Anderson and Automotive Senior Teacher Ben Iannarelli coordinates the program for Minuteman Tech.

Daniel S. MacMunn of 142 Park Ave. will be working at Hodgdon-Noyes Buick, 835 Mass. Ave. Edward J. Mallett of 41 Wollaston Ave., will work at Frost Motors Inc., in Newton.

Two youths from outside Arlington will be working at Mirak Chevrolet Inc., 1125R Mass. Ave. They are Steven C. Mudge of Brookline and Philip E. Petschek of Lexington.

Arlington Catholic Presents Awards

Class Night for the Arlington Catholic High School Class of 1986 was held Tuesday evening. The speaker was MSGR. John J. Linnehan, pastor of St. Agnes Parish. Along with messages delivered by valedictorian John Thomas Dooley and salutatorian Lisa Marie Buoncuroe awards were presented to the graduates. Parents, faculty and invited guests enjoyed this first celebration of Arlington Catholic's "Senior Week."

Newbury College Holds Registration

Newbury College in Arlington is still registering students for classes in all major areas at Arlington High School, 869 Mass. Ave.

Classes began Monday May 19, but it is not too late for anyone interested to register.

Newbury College offers associate degree programs in areas including Business Administration, Computer Science, Fashion and Design, Culinary Arts, Hospitality Management, Office Technology and Auto Service Management.

Certificate programs as well as individual courses for personal enrichment such as psychology and shorthand are also available.

Anyone interested in signing up for classes should contact Sue Rosenthal, campus director, at 648-5424.

Newbury College, a two-year college, is accredited by the New England Assn. of Schools and Colleges.

If taking your baby to the dentist is a surprising idea, consider that at least 50% of all 3-year-olds have one or more decayed teeth. That's why you should make an appointment with a pediatric dentist soon after the appearance of most of your child's primary teeth. Your dentist will not only correct existing problems, but also stop new ones from developing, and help you plan a program of oral hygiene that can save years of dental work for your child (and lots of money for you). It's never too early to start on a lifetime of healthy smiles. Want to know more? Call today, and we'll explain why going to the dentist is definitely for babies!

Choate-Symmes Center for the Health Care and Development of The Older Adult

AT CHOATE-SYMMES, we believe that GOOD HEALTH IS AGELESS... and we're working to make it happen.

ACUTE CARE:

• Expanded inpatient units benefit from a two-year study done in conjunction with Brandeis University and supported in part by a grant from the John Hartford Foundation, New York, which makes Choate-Symmes a national leader in innovative care for older adults.

INDEPENDENT LIVING:

• Through Choate-Symmes' Lifeline Program, now the largest in Massachusetts, emergency medical help is available at the push of a button.
• Older and Growing discussion groups share common concerns.
• Home Care and Optional Overnight Stays in the hospital (following one-day surgery) strengthen independence.

WELLNESS:

• Senior Sunday Brunches offer a delicious meal and educational program or entertainment.
• Speakers' Bureau programs are available to groups.
• Meals-on-Wheels provide balanced, prepared meals five days a week.
• Fitness over 50 classes encourage appropriate levels of exercise.
• New technologies strengthen diagnostic and treatment capabilities.
• We're even planning a Life Care Retirement Community in Lexington. Marketing will begin in the fall.

For more information on these and other programs, you are invited to call our Community Relations Department/Elder Services — at Symmes Hospital, Extension 1440.

Library Activities

Library To Close On Saturdays

Starting this Saturday, May 24, the Robbins Library will be closed Saturdays for the summer. However, the Junior Library will be open on Monday evenings until 9 p.m. beginning Monday, June 2.

The new adult library hours will be Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

New Junior Library hours, effective June 2, will be Monday from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The Library will re-open Saturdays the first Saturday after Labor Day, Sept. 6.

Library Has Compact Discs

The product of new recording technology, audio CDs (compact discs) are only 4 1/2 inches in diameter, hold up to 75 minutes of music and are "read" by a laser beam. These discs have superior sound quality and are not easily scratched or warped.

The library has purchased a compact disc player and a starter collection of 100 CDs. Come to the art and music room to listen to the great sound or to take home a few CDs.

'The Visit' To Show At Fox

The movie "The Visit" will be shown free at the Fox Branch Library this Friday, May 23rd, at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

This is one of Ingrid Bergman's lesser known movies—a dramatic tale of a woman wronged who returns to her village seeking vengeance. The story takes place and was filmed in Italy and co-stars Anthony Quinn.

Library Users Need New Cards

The Robbins Library will go on-line with an automated circulation system in June.

All Arlington residents must obtain a new library card to be used with this system. New cards may be obtained by showing the library staff a current ID with your Arlington address.

This card will allow residents access to the resources of 20 area libraries holding 700,000 unique titles and 2 million volumes.

The libraries cooperating in the Minuteman Library Network include Arlington, Bedford, Belmont, Concord, Framingham, Framingham State College, Lasell Junior College, Lincoln, Medford, Natick, Needham, Somerville, Sudbury, Waltham, Watertown, Wayland, Wellesley, Weston, Westwood and Winchester.

Library workers urge residents to obtain the new cards before the rush in June.

67 From Arlington To Get Diplomas Minuteman Graduation Is June 5

Members of Minuteman Tech's ninth graduating class will receive their diplomas on Thursday evening, June 5, in an outdoor ceremony.

Speaking at the graduation will be Valedictorian Henry Thomas of Lincoln and Salutatorian April Knowlton of Medford.

Also speaking will be senior class president John Gill of Somerville. Minuteman Tech Superintendent-Director Ron Fitzgerald and Principal William Callahan will welcome the class.

Awards and scholarships will be given out by Assistant Superintendent Beverly Lydiard, District Treasurer Michele Lombardo and Guidance Counselor Janice Shaw who is chairman of the School Committee.

Diplomas will be presented by school committee members, assisted by Principal Callahan, Dean of Students John Miller, Senior Class Advisor James O'Reilly and Director of Guidance William Callahan.

Scholarships and awards will also be given out at the school's Scholarship and Awards Banquet which will be held on Wednesday evening, June 4, at the Hillcrest in Waltham.

Preliminary placement data for the Minuteman Tech Class of 1986 indicates that approximately 60 percent of the students will be immediately going to work in the trade for which they have trained or in a related field. Twenty percent of the students will be going on to further education, 10 percent will be entering military service, and the remaining 10 percent will be working in a field unrelated to their Minuteman training or are unsure of their future plans.

Forty percent of the seniors have been working for pay in co-op positions related to their technical training at Minuteman.

State House

Financial Disclosure (H 1678) - House 1678 gave initial approval to a bill setting up new and higher categories under which many state and county officials must disclose outside earnings under the state's financial disclosure laws. The current system has $100,000 or more as the highest category while the bill sets the highest category at $300,000 or more.

Supporters said the economy has changed so much that the $100,000 limit is not meaningful when many people earn more than that.

Opponents said the bill is another intrusion in the life of public officials and will continue to discourage people from serving in office.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Mary Jane Gibson voted no.

Representative John Cusack did not vote.

Dual Office (H 3348) - House 119-25, rejected a bill prohibiting any person who holds an elective state or county office from holding any elective office in the city of Pittsfield unless he or she resigns from the state or county office. The bill also places the bill on the ballot in Pittsfield for voter consideration.

Supporters said the bill, approved by the city council, is simply a home rule one which will be decided by voters.

Opponents, claiming the bill is aimed at one person, said the legislature should not get involved.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Gibson voted no.

Cusack did not vote.

The next six roll calls deal with amendments to the controversial medical malpractice reform bill. The House gave near final approval to the bill last week on a voice vote and sent it over to the Senate.

Reject Tender (H 5612) - House 81-68, approved an amendment allowing plaintiffs to reject "early tender" offers made by orthopedic surgeons in malpractice cases.

Amendment supporters said that without the amendment, plaintiffs would be required to accept a surgeon's offer which would not include damages for pain and suffering and noted the plaintiff would have little or no recourse in court.

Opponents said the amendment kills the entire "early tender" provision which is a good one designed to save litigation costs, lower premiums and still be fair to both sides.

A Yea vote is for the amendment.

A Nay vote is against it.

Cusack voted yes.

Gibson voted no.

Fair Market (H 5612) - House 136-7, approved an amendment requiring a medical service corporation to pay doctors a fair market rate for their services to subscribers.

Amendment supporters said this insures that doctors are adequately paid by Blue Cross which has not been reimbursing at a fair rate.

Opponents offered no arguments.

A Yea vote is for the amendment.

A Nay vote is against it.

Gibson voted yes.

Cusack voted no.

Waiver (H 5612) - House 129-18, rejected an amendment providing that a doctor's license be revoked for one year if it is determined that he or she made a patient sign a waiver of liability for the doctor's negligence or malpractice.

Amendment supporters said this will protect patients who are being pressured by doctors.

Opponents said it is already illegal for doctors to require such a waiver.

A Yea vote is for the amendment.

A Nay vote is against it.

Gibson and Cusack voted no.

Legal Fees (H 5612) - House 132-19, rejected an amendment decreasing the amount of money an attorney may collect from the plaintiff in a successful malpractice suit. Changes include reducing the attorney's share of the first $150,000 from 40 percent to 33 1/3 percent and the second $150,000 from 33 1/3 to 30 percent.

Amendment supporters said this will help the consumer and still entitle lawyers to a profit.

Opponents said lawyers are generally paid only if the case is won and argued the higher limits are necessary to help them recoup losses.

A Yea vote is for the amendment.

A Nay vote is against it.

Gibson and Cusack voted no.

Prescriptions (S 501 and S 1398) - Senate 26-10 rejected an amendment to a bill allowing physician assistants to order certain diagnostic tests and prescribe drugs and then 26-9 rejected a similar amendment to a bill allowing certain nurses to do the same. The amendments would delay the legislation until completion of a review of a 1983 law giving physician assistants these powers in long-term care facilities.

Many amendment supporters opposed the bill, said it weakens the health care system and urged a study of the effects of the 1983 law.

Opponents said the bill includes many safeguards and will reduce costs and improve access without sacrificing quality medical care.

Both roll calls are listed below.

A Yea vote is for the amendment.

A Nay vote is against it.

In both roll calls Kraus voted no.

Premiums (H 5612) - House first approved 74-70 and then approved again 71-69, an amendment freezing medical malpractice insurance premiums until June 1987 and forgiving rate increases from 1983-1986.

Amendment supporters said the Joint Underwriting Association (JUA) has a $300 million reserve and argued it is unfair to make doctors pay retroactive hikes.

Opponents said the amendment will cost $60 million in already due premiums and argued it is an unconstitutional amendment which will cause the JUA financial problems.

Both roll calls are listed.

A Yea vote is for the amendment.

A Nay vote is against it.

Cusack did not vote on the first and second roll call.

Gibson voted no on the first and second roll call.

Midwest-Bound, Like Dorothy For Oz:

By TERRY MAROTTA

"Unusual travel suggestions are dancing lessons from God," says a character in one of Kurt Vonnegut's novels.

I had a lesson of this sort myself last week when I flew to Iowa to participate in interviews for the Journalist-in-Space Project.

Last month, when I was first named a semi-finalist in this competition, the Project called and said there'd been some scheduling difficulties for one of the other candidates. Could I oblige them by taking his slot in the Midwest and travelling out there for the interviews that would determine the next cut?

I said that I'd be happy to, that flexibility was my middle name, that the school nurse called routinely and reorganized my day by shipping home to me one or another of my suddenly fevered, pocked or otherwise languishing offspring.

So I packed my suitcase last week and boarded a plane, which after several stops and changes, landed me at last in the heartland.

There, together with other semi-finalists, I was videotaped, photographed, prodded and grilled by a team of judges whose task it was to select those of us best able to demonstrate poise before the glare of flood lights and the bristle of mikes.

I emerged from these proceedings feeling the way you're supposed to feel after any good exam: like I'd learned something, and been asked to stretch a few muscles that hadn't been used in a while.

But if my mind experienced a stretching and an airing out there, so too did my spirit. I'd never visited this part of the country before, and I felt, flying across it, like Dorothy bound for Oz.

I pressed my nose against the windows of our plane, and read the long epic poem of a country spreading west.

Here by this coast there are hills. Out toward the other there are mountains. In the middle, though, it looks as though God took his two hands, pushed back the earth to create those bumps on either coast, cleared a wide space on the smooth flat belly of the land and said, "Here's all I do my best work."

You can almost see things grow on the Great Plains, even from five miles up. The soil looks fresh and dark, moist and just combed by the plos of spring planting. Silos and neat white houses dot the landscape. Trees in their new greenery garnish it like springs of fresh parsley.

And the people are wonderful. The teaching assistant who met me at the airport, the journalism student who escorted me from building to building, even the personnel at the airport "ticket" counters were warm and helpful.

A man I met after leaving Cedar Rapids was the nicest of all. We found ourselves walking the same way in the Chicago airport, and he said, "Hey, hi." We were on the same flight just now.

We chatted a bit as we walked, and exchanged accounts of what had brought us both to this crossroads. Then he ducked into a shop and I kept on walking.

Five minutes later he caught up with me again, an inflatable toy model of the Shuttle Columbia in his hand.

"This is for you," he told me. "Thank you," I said. "You shouldn't," I said. "You'll never get anywhere in life buying presents for strangers," I said.

"So where's to get?" he answered with a grin.

"Back home? Into space?"

But his meaning lay on another level.

I made the cut. I learned later last week: I'm a finalist now for a ride on that shuttle.

But the question that this young man put to me has stayed in my mind. It seems to sum up one of the great paradoxes life presents us with: travel far to learn your destiny, seek it in the stars. Stay at home to learn your fate, seek it in the heart.

I journeyed to Iowa last week and came back with more than souvenirs packed in my luggage.

It was an unusual travel suggestion, this that sent me far to bring me home again. It was a dancing lesson of the finest kind.

Letters To The Editor

Classroom Visits — Who Decides?

TO THE EDITOR:

During the past several months I have tried, without success, to gain permission to observe various elementary classrooms. My purpose in requesting these observations is to view classroom teaching methods and styles so that I, as a parent, can provide informed input with regard to my child's placement for the coming school year.

My request has been denied at all administrative levels, owing to an "understanding" throughout the system that this type of observation would be both disruptive and distracting. I was told, by the administration, that classroom observations were not permitted.

At a recent Elementary Subcommittee meeting, I learned that these observations have occurred quite frequently in several elementary schools throughout the school year. I was both encouraged and impressed by the attitude of many of the teachers in attendance, who felt that parental observations, when pre-arranged and conducted quietly and briefly, were neither disruptive nor distracting. Most of the teachers recognized the validity of my request, and I wish to express my gratitude to these teachers for their understanding and verbal support.

The reality is that the decision regarding visitation has been left to the discretion of the individual building principal, a policy of preferential treatment depending on one's school district. I am unwilling to accept the notion that certain schools are "closed," while others in the same system allow and even encourage visitation.

The Elementary Sub-Committee will meet again in early June to present its recommendations with regard to this issue. Please contact the School Committee for the actual date. I urge all concerned parents to attend this meeting.

are developed both at home and at school, and there is no question this is most important in our complex world. Creativity, artistic expression and communication skills are part of a child's approach to living and are fostered from the time the child is born, not brought about by admission to kindergarten or even preschool.

I am glad to see that the "Committee" asks how the "public" can help the schools, though I would change the question to "how parents can help." If the group will focus on this question, I believe real progress can be made.

I regret the implication that there is a need to "confront" anyone. If we will address the issues, rather than "How can I help?" we will get much further and efforts will be welcomed by teachers, administration and School Committee.

As to the curriculum, has anyone been denied access to curriculum guides? As a former teacher in Arlington, I know that teachers and administrators have spent long after-school hours on formal guides, which undoubtedly are available to all.

Anxieties evidenced, questions asked by parents at the meeting were honest and are important to the educational future of Arlington. There are ways all of us can work together to improve the preparation of children for the challenges of adulthood if we approach it with a team effort, remembering that Arlington taxpayers are generous in supporting public schools, that the School Committee is made up of talented, public-spirited, informed volunteers who work long hours to maintain best possible standards, and teachers every day accomplish wonders in a difficult assignment. Progress can be made.

Foreign language education in elementary schools? The question is how can it be accomplished. Several ethnic groups provide it after school now: classes in Greek, Armenian, Chinese, Hebrew come to mind at once. How about some of the many talented parents skilled in a language volunteering in classrooms?

One way parents can help is to offer assistance to overburdened teachers. For instance, bulletin boards take a lot of time and are worth doing, but there are only 24 hours; anyone's day. Some children need help with English as a second language; some need one-to-one help with reading and assigned paper work - either in school or at home.

All children need to be constantly reassured of their self-worth and their ability to succeed; all need conversation and peer contacts beyond the classroom.

As for making a judgment about the effectiveness of a teacher - this is a challenge to everyone, including those who spend their lives in education. A drop-in visit to a classroom, planned or unplanned, won't accomplish much. I can say unequivocally.

However, an opportunity to spend an entire day in a classroom as a volunteer teacher's aide could possibly help a parent see ways a particular child could be helped outside the classroom and could be helpful to the teacher as well.

Beyond this is the bonus for the parent that it is a personally rewarding experience to be part of a classroom for an entire day, and it would emphasize to the child the importance a parent places on school and learning.

No one cares more about quality education than the superintendent and the administrative staff, but the superintendent can only set the course and "superintend" the effort. Arlington's smoothly running school system has resulted because of the competence and diligence of all involved.

Finally, let me say that I urge the "Committee for Responsive Education" to approach issues as helpers and not confronters, that they inform themselves through established channels and then proceed to be helpful.

Arlington has a well-set up public school system that accomplishes high standards, and of course has not yet reached a state of perfection.

There is a dedicated group serving on the School Committee, duly elected members who have been delegated by the town to provide good education for our children. To my knowledge they have always welcomed questions and suggestions, but the final responsibility for decisions lies with the School Committee.

Visiting Nurse Week Noted

TO THE EDITOR:

The Governor has designated the third week of May as Visiting Nurse Week in Massachusetts. Although this is only the second year in which they have been officially honored, the visiting nurses have been in the home health care business since the turn of the century.

On this Visiting Nurse Week we are going to focus on a special service which our local visiting nurse agency, Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Inc. provides: the supportive care service team. Through a supportive care team, organized support and help is offered to people who are being cared for at home, who would fall between the cracks.

Residents who need this specialized care are acutely ill and require intensive nursing care. They are being treated for life threatening illnesses such as the end stages of cancer, cardiac disease and multiple sclerosis.

They are referred to the team by the visiting nurse agency itself, by hospitals, by their physicians, and by family members.

The supportive care team is comprised of four nurses, plus a consulting nurse, a social worker, and eight home health aides. This team has the resources of Visiting Nurse and Community Health to draw upon: physical therapists, homemakers and companions. Two of the four nurses on the team are also on the IV Therapy Team and are skilled in this high tech area.

The team carries a caseload of between 20-25 clients. In addition to the actual care of the acutely ill patients, they provide on-going support for clients and family, collaborate with the patients' physicians, teach the families to cope with the disease and its treatment, and utilize community resources on behalf of their patients.

Team members are professionals who are committed to providing this special, intensive care. They really want to do this work. They have selected it and are constantly advancing through workshops, inservices, and group meetings.

Acutely ill clients of the supportive care team receive TLC as does any VNCH patient - with a little extra dose.

Kennedy Thanks Local Signers

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to each of the 3,807 Arlington residents who signed my nomination papers, allowing my name to appear on the Sept. 16 primary ballot.

Special thanks go to those who collected the signatures, including John Doyle, Fred Pitcher, Al Salpante, Jerry Keete, Selectman Bob Murray and Town Treasurer John Blafar.

Two thousand voter signatures districtwide are required to qualify, but my campaign was able to gather almost twice that in Arlington alone. This vote of confidence inspires me to work even harder to earn your votes in September and November and to be the kind of innovative, hard working Congressman this district deserves.

Town Memories Will Linger On

TO THE EDITOR:

It isn't easy to leave a town, a church, and a school that has given a family of five such a great start. Arlington has more to offer children than we've ever known before. All the youth programs are terrific and have youth volunteers that are high quality and loving.

We can't say enough about Thompson School. I'm sure the foundation of education our sons have received there will be a standard to be lived up to. The staff is exceptional and the parents have become lifelong friends, as well as co-workers equal to none.

The Pleasant Street Congregational Church has been a warm group of friends that kept our feet on the ground and supported us.

Leaving isn't easy in any case, but all your memories will be cherished always.

Thanks Arlington!

Nursing Home Staff Thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

Each year, a week is set aside to remember and honor all residents living in the nation's nursing homes. The theme for National Nursing Home Week, May 11 thru May 17, was "People Caring for People."

Park Avenue Nursing, Convalescent and Retirement Home celebrated this event with special activities beginning with a luncheon for 16 volunteers on Monday.

This was followed by a ladies tea with families on Tuesday, a special May birthday party with entertainment on Wednesday, an Ice Cream Party on Thursday and a luncheon for "men only" on Friday.

We would like to thank our thoughtful staff and volunteers who made Nursing Home Week such a success for us all.

What's Happening

Benefit Art Auction

Umberto Centofante's oil painting of a Spy Pond scene, "Smell of Spring," is one of 30 works of art on display at the Coolidge Bank and the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank until the end of May. The art was donated by Arlington artists to the Park Commission to help initiate the Park Beautification Fund. The art can be bought through a silent auction, and bid slips can be picked up in the banks.

Flower Arranging Tips To Be Given

An opportunity to learn the secrets of flower arranging will be offered Friday, May 30, at the Park Avenue Congregational Church.

The Mary Martha Fellowship will sponsor a luncheon and demonstration by professional florist, Richard Erickson. Erickson's career began over 40 years ago when he graduated from the Elise Cutler School of Floral Design. He opened his first flower shop in 1950, and in 1971 he purchased Rogers Flower Shoppes, Inc. of Brookline and Boston.

He has been awarded many first prizes by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and in 1960 he was one of the florists chosen to do the flower arrangements for the Inaugural Ball of President John F. Kennedy in Washington, D.C. Mr. Erickson has also been teaching and lecturing for 33 years and has recently opened his own floral design school, Floraltrain.

The May 30 program will begin with a luncheon served at 11:45 a.m. followed by the flower arranging demonstration.

The program will be held in the Parish Hall of the Park Avenue Congregational Church. The entrance is at the corner of Paul Revere Road and Park Avenue.

Tickets are now on sale for $4 and can be obtained by calling the church office, 643-4477, during the morning or 643-3537 or 862-4812 in the afternoon and evening.

Historical Society To Have Meeting

The Arlington Historical Society will hold its final meeting of its 1985-86 season on May 27 at 8 p.m. at the Smith Museum, 7 Jason St. The public is invited to attend this annual meeting, which features the election of officers for next year.

For more information about the meeting, call 648-4300.

Adult Children Of Alcoholics Topic Of Show

For the final show of the school year, "Alcohol, Drugs and You" will focus on Adult Children of Alcoholics.

An estimated 28 million people in this country are children of alcoholic parents. This program will examine the ways in which normal psychological development is altered in alcoholic family systems, discuss the personal and interpersonal problems which result, and explore ways in which the affected adult child can seek help.

Program guests will include Barbara Kleeman, a licensed psychologist who has led numerous groups for adult children of alcoholics, and has 13 years experience working with alcoholics and their families. She is a partner of Commonwealth, Inc. in Arlington.

Pam and Dale will share their experiences as adult children of alcoholics. Co-hosts will be Vin D'Antona and Elizabeth Oppedisano.

Phone lines will be available for viewers at home who may wish to call in with questions and commentary for the hosts and guests.

"Alcohol, Drugs and You" will appear on local cable channel 3 on Wednesday, May 28, at 7:30 p.m.

Historic House Tours Offered

Why did William Whittemore of Arlington name his sons James Madison, Thomas Jefferson, and John Hancock Whittemore? Why did three orphans born in Philadelphia become generous patrons of the Town of Arlington, and eventually give their home to the town as well?

These and other questions will be answered at the Whittemore-Robbins House when it once again opens to the public under the auspices of the Arlington Historical Commission.

The Whittemore-Robbins House is owned and maintained by the Town of Arlington. In 1983 the restoration of the dining room, hallway, and parlors of the house was undertaken by the Arlington Historical Commission. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places since 1974, the Whittemore-Robbins House remains a focal point of pride and architectural heritage for Arlington residents.

Don't miss this opportunity to see this "stately dwelling" as well as learn more about two of the most interesting and influential families in Arlington's history.

Visitors will also want to investigate the nearby gardens, a gift of the Robbins family to the town.

The Whittemore-Robbins House is located behind the Robbins Library at 700 Mass. Ave. It will be opened for tours from 1 to 4 p.m. on the following Sundays: May 25, June 1, June 8, June 15, June 22, and June 29. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

For more information, please call 646-6694.

Democratic Town Committee To Vote On Endorsements

The Arlington Democratic Town Committee will hold its last meeting of the season on May 22. Members of the committee will vote on endorsements of democratic candidates appearing on the Arlington ballot next September for statewide office, county office, state representative, state senator, and U.S. Congress.

Letters have been sent out to all Democratic candidates for these offices explaining the procedures. A two-thirds vote of the members present is required for an endorsement.

There will not be time on the agenda for candidates to make a presentation at the meeting, but the candidates have been sent a list of the voting town committee members so that they may contact them and make their case.

At a minimum, an endorsed candidate will be able to use the endorsement in ads and literature. Beyond that, the committee is discussing the possibility of taking out and paying for newspaper ads, financial contributions, provision of workers, space, and other organizing help.

The Arlington Democratic Town Committee meets in the Community Safety Building at the corner of Summer and Mystic. Members of the public are welcome to attend.
